

Amendments to the Abstract:

Please replace the current Abstract of the Invention with the following new

Abstract of the Invention:

--An indicator control system with a camera section provided with a switch for switching from a measurement value display mode to a camera display mode and vice versa to display a selected mode on a monitor section of an indicator. The measurement value display mode shows the measurement data of an object to be monitored on a construction machine, and the camera display mode is for the camera section mounted on the construction machine. --